THE ISSUE AT THE PRIMARY.

Shall the Democra ic Party Go Forward Upholding the Hands of President Wilson, or is it to Fall Back into i's Dishonorable and Dishonored Place.

Every true Democrat in Pennsylvania who believes in the principles of the party, who approves what has been done for the people of the United States by Congress and President Wilson during the last year, and who wants this great State redeemed from the blight of Penroseism and corrupt bi-partisan machine control should thoroughly understand what the issue is, that is to be decided by the Democratic voters of Pennsylvania at the primary on May 19 next.

There is no mystery as to what that issue is. It has been framed and made perfectly clear by those who are opposing the reorganized Democracy and its leaders. On the one side are the sincere, progressive Wilson Democrats of the State, the rejuvinated, and reinvigorated party in Pennsylvania, who stood solidly for Woodrow Wilson from the time he was first spoken of for the Presidential nomination, all through the preliminary campaign, and by their unswerving support at Baltimore made his nomination possible and the triumph of the national Democracy at the election in 1912 sure.

On the other side are the so called Democrats who fought the reorganization movement from beginning to end and who if they had not been defeated in the Democratic State Committee in 1911 and 1912, and at the primary and State Convention in 1912, would have continued the Democratic party organization in Pennsylvania as an adjunct of the Penrosebi-partisan machine.

They made the issue when their candidate for the nomination for Governor was announced, accompanied by a vicious attack upon the reorganized party and its leaders and an expressed determination to defeat them and drive them out at the primary in May.

Their whole primary campaign has been made along the same lines and with the express approval of their candidate for the nomination for Governor.

Compare the men who have been active in the reorganization of the party and what they have accomplished, with those who propose to undo the work of reorganization and defeat its leaders, and what they did with the party organization when they controlled it. Compare them and their work with Eugene C. Bonniwell, and Charles P. Donnelly, of Philadelphia, James M. Guffey and William J. Brennen of Pittsburgh and James K. P. Hall of Elk county, and their work.

There is no mistaking the issue. Shall the party go forward in the way it has gone during the last three years, upholding the hands of President Wilson and the Democratic Congress or shall it fall back into its old dishonorable and dishonored place as an annex of the Penrose machine satisfied to take such crumbs as the boss chooses to toss to it?

That is the issue. Can there be any doubt as to how the Democrats of Pennsylvania will decide it?

Must Quit Booze.

Every day it becomes more and more evident that the booze must go. The legislature of the state has done little toward making a sober man of the booze artist, but the large corporations, the railroads and the employers of labor are taking a hand. The Harbison-Walker Refractories Company, which has plants at Mill Hall, Clinton county, and Clearfield, Clearfield county, through C. H. Peters, district manager, has issued instructions to the superintendents of plants that hereafter any employe discovered with intoxicating drink in his possession or under the influence of liquor on the company's property will be promptly discharged. Employes absenting themselves from work on account of excessive drinking will be dismissed.

Court News.

The jury that heard the suit for damages claimed by Burdine Butler against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, rendered a verdict in his favor in the sum of $10,163. When the Bald Eagle railroad was improved a portion of the Butler farm was appropriated by the company under the right of eminent domain.

Not a Candidate.

Speaker George E. Alter is not a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor. He said so himself, and this gives Martin G. Brumbaugh, the Philadelphia School Superintendent, a clear field for the regular Republican nomination.

THE HORSE INDISPENSABLE.

The Prophecy that the Horseless Age Was at Hand is Proved Fallacious.

There is in Pennsylvania no higher professional authority on horse-breeding than Doctor Louis A. Klein, Dean of the Veterinary School of the University of Pennsylvania. His statement at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania State Veterinary Association on Wednesday, that the horse is not being displaced by the automobile and that there is greater demand for good draft horses today than ever before, is in line with the statistics of animal husbandry issued from time to time by the Federal Department of Agriculture.

It may be hard to account for, but the prophecy we heard ten, twelve and fifteen years ago, that the horseless age was at hand, and that those animals were to be succeeded by automobiles, has proved entirely fallacious. On the contrary the number of horses has increased remarkably and the prices for some have doubled since the automobile first came into use. The prices obtained at the horse sales in Penns Valley clearly demonstrate this.

Dr. Klein was entirely right in saying that at no time in this country's history has horse breeding been more flourishing than it is now. This is especially true with regard to heavy draft horses. There is and has been right along, an excellent demand for such animals. They require no special training to fit them for the market as is the case with horses intended for road service.

Although the automobile business has developed to a remarkable extent, employing hundreds of thousands of men and millions of dollars of capital, there is no sign that horse-breeding will not continue to be one of the most profitable enterprises in which farmers can engage.

Meeting of I. O. O. F. Grand Lodge.

From 1200 to 1500 representatives of the Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of Pennsylvania will meet in annual session in Harrisburg early in May. The sessions will probably be held in the Majestic Theatre. Preliminary plans for the convention were made Saturday night by the general committee of arrangements.

The subordinate lodge producing the best degree team will be given prizes of $300 in cash and a $100 banner by the Grand Lodge. Teams within a radius of 125 miles of Harrisburg are practising and are holding a competitive drill in that city this week.

Fire at Pleasant Gap.

The dwelling house occupied by Fred Allen, in Pleasant Gap, was totally destroyed by fire on Wednesday night of last week, the fire having originated from a defective flue. The property was owned by Noll Brothers, and was discovered to be on fire about twelve o'clock by one of the owners, and it was with difficulty that the inmates were aroused. The escape was made without injury but nothing was saved from the house. Both the tenant and owners carried insurance, but not nearly full value.

Clayton Wagner Farm Sold.

E. Clayton Wagner sold his farm located three miles south of Centre Hall to W. H. Knarr for the sum of $5000. The farm contains fifty-eight acres, almost all of it under cultivation. It is the John Runkle homestead. Mr. Knarr is manager of several farms in Westmoreland county for a coal company, but it is his intention to occupy his new possessions and give his whole time to farming.

Special Church Services.

Beginning with Monday, March 16th, Rev. Samuel Moody of Hollidaysburg, will preach in the Presbyterian church each evening throughout the week except Saturday. All are cordially invited. The annual congregational meeting will be held after the close of the service on Monday evening. Communion Sabbath morning, March 22nd.

ORATORICAL CONTEST.

A Pleasant Day in the Millheim High School Building.

From Millheim Journal.

An event long looked for came to a realization on last Friday, when the district contest in oratory took place in the high school room at Millheim.

The district is composed of the townships of Penn, Haines, Miles, Potter, Gregg and the boroughs of Centre Hall and Millheim.

To stimulate greater activity in the art of oratory, a recognized safeguard to a republic, the Millheim Banking Co. offered a prize of ten dollars, in gold, to the young man who would show himself superior in a contest in oratory before competent judges.

Four orators presented themselves to contest for the honor and prize. Each contestant came well supported by the district which he represented.

The school room was beautifully decorated with flags, bunting and colors of each class in the Millheim high school.

F. P. Musser, Esq, Dr. P. A. Smith and Prof. Robt. L. App constituted the judges. A well arranged program was carried out by the high school, which added not a little to the interest and enthusiasm of the occasion. After several selections by the high school, the National hymn was sung and the contest was on.

"Abraham Lincoln"—by Albert H. Stover of Millheim was very well delivered. The subject appealed to the audience which showed its deepest interest. The orator maintained the standard for his district and received hearty approval and great applause.

After a well rendered piano duet by Miss Shelton and Mr. Stover, Russell A. Auman of Miles township high school delivered an excellent oration on "What We Owe to Abraham Lincoln." The large audience gave the greatest degree of attention to this young and rising orator, for he had already won the prize in oratory in his own district against all competitors. He delivered a faultless oration and was well supported by his district. The high school then rendered a spirited selection or Hilly-Ho song, which gave much encouragement to those who followed.

Penn township was represented by J. Pearson Glasgow on "Ancient and Modern Oratory." The growing interest in the contest lent more enthusiasm which showed itself in the animated spirit that entered into the delivery of this excellent oration. The speaker has the making of a first-class orator and no doubt will be heard again.

A vocal duet was well rendered by the Misses Gutelius and Musser, after which Henry Mingle of Haines township spoke on "Wolfe at Quebec." The enthusiasm was now at its highest tension and the speaker entered into the oration with all his soul and energy. The patriotic subject and deep energy and feeling displayed won for the orator the highest applause. So great was the enthusiasm at the conclusion that the principal, Prof. D P. Stapleton, requested the audience to arise and join in singing the "Star Spangled Banner."

The judges were now invited to retire to another room and deliberate upon the prize winner and second, which was seen to be no easy task.

Several duets, and remarks by the principal allayed the anxious audience until the judges appeared. The first honor was awarded to Henry Mingle of Haines township, and second honor to Russell Auman of Miles township. These two young men are expected to contest, with others, at Bellefonte on March 27, for honor, and a county prize of $25.

It is pleasing to note the manner and enthusiasm with which the several districts supported their chosen leaders. It has aroused an almost dormant art that is of greatest value in every Democratic country. Oratory stands next to the press, and in legislative halls and often in heated political campaigns surpasses it.

The greatest credit is due to those who arranged for the contest and the donors who volunteered the prizes.

Jonas Bible Farm Sold.

The Bible homestead near Potters Mills was sold by Mrs. Alice Bible and Harry E Bible, executors of Jonas Bible, deceased, to Edward Longbner of Jeannette. The farm contains fifty-eight acres. The price has not been given to the public.

Supplement Enclosed.

This issue contains a supplement—the Centre county auditor's statement of the finances of Centre county. The statement should be carefully read by every taxpayer.

LETTERS FROM SUBSCRIBERS.

A. N. Runkle Writes from the Land of Sunshine and Flowers.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal, February 20, 1914.

Editor Reporter:

Enclosed find check for $1 50 for one year's subscription. I certainly enjoy getting the paper from home, yet it brings sadness with it when I read of those with whom I went to school and other associates that pass out; but such is life which we all have to meet. I often wish that I knew where all the boys and girls were that used to clique together. I often think of the sleigh rides and picnics we used to have. It is now twenty-four years since I visited my folks. I suppose if I were to come back they would all or nearly all seem as strangers to me. When I read about the cold, snow and ice I am glad that I live in a country of sunshine and flowers, where the song of the birds is heard all the year round and children run barefooted. I suppose that if I tell you that on New Year's day I picked raspberries from our vines some one will say, "Oh! what a story," but such is the case. I could tell you lots about this country but do not have the time now, but will some time later. I remain,

General Taylor Selects Coffin.

General John P. Taylor, the well known Mifflin county soldier and gentleman, had the Bureau Brothers, Philadelphia, cast for him a solid bronze casket, the material being that of old cannons captured during the war with the south. With this coffin, the General completes every detail of his funeral and burial arrangements. During the past few years the private burying ground on the Taylor homestead has been materially improved and beautified. A vault has been sunk with foundations strong enough to support a big granite block which ultimately will cover it and be surmounted by a bronze statue of General Taylor.

The bronze casket is now at Lewistown in the undertaking establishment of J. H. Fretz, with whom General Taylor contracted for his burial.

General Taylor is now in his eighty-sixth year, but is quite hale and healthy, and without doubt will live long enough to see the bronze casket tarnish before it is used.

The Millheim Minstrels, March 19.

Those who took a good laugh on the appearance of the Millheim Minstrel Club last year, will again have an opportunity to witness this troupe of talented young men in a series of funny coon acts, dialogues, singing, and an unlimited number of side-splitting jokes, etc. They will be here, in Grange Arcadia, Thursday evening, March 19, with an entire new program, and as good as last year's performance was, this one promises to greatly surpass it by reason of the fact that better material has been supplied where needed, and on account of the experience gained by last year's performance. The singing is a feature which calls for special mention. Mr. Gephart's fine bass solo is claimed to be well worth the price of admission.

The local Grange will share in the receipts at the door so your patronage will benefit a home institution.

See large posters for details, price of admission, etc.

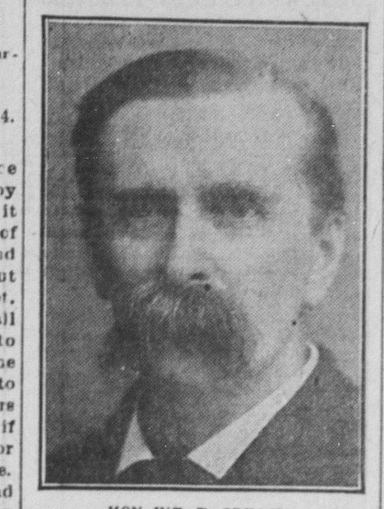
NEW DEPARTURE

Selling Medicines at Half Price Under Guarantee of Cure.

After two months of remarkable sales, Murray & Bitner, the enterprising druggist, say that their plan of selling at half price the regular 50 cent size of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, and guaranteeing to refund the money if it does not cure, has been the greatest success they have ever known

Anyone suffering with dyspepsia, constipation, liver troubles, headaches, dizziness, coated tongue, or the general tired feeling, caused by inactive liver and bowels or disordered digestion, should take advantage of Murray & Bitner's new departure and buy a bottle of Dr. Howard's specific at half price, with their personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.

The world is full of prophets after the event. And always will be.



HON. WM. T. CREASY.

Sees Failure in Prohibition.

National Prohibition is the ideal of temperance people of various degrees of sincerity. In this connection the views of Cardinal Gibbons, given in a news dispatch, are quoted:

"Prohibition never will be enforced in a Christian country," said James, Cardinal Gibbons, in a statement made public in the South. The Cardinal is paying his annual visit to his brother, John T. Gibbons, of this city.

"While I am an ardent advocate of temperance, I am intuitively persuaded that prohibition cannot be enforced in this country," continued Cardinal Gibbons.

"It is calculated to make hypocrites and lead to the manufacture of illicit whiskey, replacing the good material with the bad, while at the same time robbing the government of the legitimate tax"

Cardinal Gibbons must be one of the multitude who believe in fighting licenses in the districts in which they live—in other words, oppose the traffic whenever an opportunity is given.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

HAPPENINGS OF LOCAL INTEREST FROM ALL PARTS

Robins have been observed in various sections of Central Pennsylvania.

G. Clyde Boob returned from Cincinnatti, Ohio, where he visited his brother, W. W. Boob.

The stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Fortney, at the Branch, above Boalsburg.

"Hard Luck Cohen" isn't in it with Rozinski; see Mr. Springer in the role of a jewish button-hole-maker out on a strike.

Amos Dunkle, the carpenter, was a guest of William J. Mitterling and his sister, Mrs. Stover, in Centre Hall for a few days.

D. Ross Bushman, teacher of the grammar grade of the Centre Hall school, was unable to teach for the past few days on account of sickness.

Do not forget the entertainment in Grange Hall on Thursday evening, March 12th, given by the Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. church. Price of admission only 10 and 15 cents.

Clayton Boob, sawyer on the McNitt-Huyett mill at Waddle, has decided that he will continue with McNitt-Huyett Lumber Company for another year, but he will move his family to Millheim.

P. A. Leister will move from Centre Hall to Georges Valley, about April 1st, onto a property purchased by him from John D. Lingle. The place is located near the Wagner farm which Mr. Leister bought.

T. H. Harter, editor of the Keystone Gazette, D. I. Willard and G Willard Hall are in Florida, having gone there to view the land owned by the Lake County Land Owner's Association in the vicinity of Fruitland Park.

Boyd A. Musser, who was a member of the York Bridge Company, severed his connections with that company and is now organizing a new company under the title of Anthracite Bridge Company, with headquarters at Scranton.

Rev. A. J. Horner has changed his place of residence from Port Allegheny, McKean county, to Youngville, Warren county. He is serving a pastorate of the Evangelical church and was transferred by the conference of that church.

Since selling his meat market at Millheim to James Finkle, P. P. Leitzell will devote all of his time to huckstering. Mr. Finkle will be assisted in the business by H. H. Leitzell, the junior partner of the former meat market firm.

Al Osman was taken to the Danville hospital on Friday morning by Overseer W. W. Spangler and Dr. J. R. G. Allison. He is a about fifty-eight years of age. He is a total wreck, and his present deplorable condition is due wholly to rum.

Jacob Hummel, residing back of Morrisdale, and Wm. T. Spackman, of Bigler, have purchased the timber on over 2,000 acres of land belonging to the Bates heirs near Karthaus. The timber is in Centre and Clearfield counties. They will market the timber this year.

On account of many requests, the young people of the M. E. church will repeat their entertainment in Grange Arcadia on Thursday evening, March 12th. They have reduced the price of admission to 10 and 15 cents, and should have a full house as the original entertainment seemed to please everybody.

The supper given in Grange Arcadia by the ladies of the W. C. T. U. was well patronized. The ladies are entitled to special mention for the very tidy appearance of the tables, the prompt serving, and the elegance of every dish brought onto the table. The net profits, of course, were not large, and this was due to the fact that the greater part of the refreshments were purchased.

Mr. Harry Bowser gave his first lecture in Centre Hall a year ago on the "Philosophy of Fun" or "Heart Smiles," and on Saturday night on "Brain Sells." He told us at the conclusion of his first lecture that we were all crazy, but it was not because we are all crazy that we went to hear him the second time, but because no one but a crazy man who had heard him once would not want to hear him again and again.

The Reporter was pleased to have a call from A. G. Gougler, one of the editors and proprietors of the Snyder County News, published in Middleburg. He is a new man in the business, but is thoroughly capable of conducting a country weekly in a manner to win the patronage due a live newspaper. Mr. Gougler is also a representative of Ginn & Co., publishers of school books, and in that capacity has had large experience and success.

Succumbs to Complications After Appendicitis Operation.

HIS CASTLE COST $3,000,000.

Youngest Son Of the Late William H. Vanderbilt Dies In Washington Following An Operation.

Washington.—George W. Vanderbilt, aged 52, muitimillionaire philanthropist and sportsman of international reputation, died here from heart failure following an operation for appendicitis. His death came suddenly, caused indirectly, through the development of pulmonary embolism, which affected the heart, preventing blood circulation.

Although seriously ill for some time, Mr. Vanderbilt had sustained the operation and continued to show signs of improvement until the complications unexpectedly arose. Previous to their appearance no alarm had been felt for his recovery and physicians said his condition was improving daily.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, who was formerly Miss Edith Dresser, of New York, had been continuously in attendance at the bedside. She was almost prostrated by her husband's sudden death.

AN APPEAL TO CONGRESS BY PRESIDENT WILSON

"Gentlemen of the Congress:

"I have come to you upon an errand which can be very briefly performed, but I beg that you will not measure its importance by the number of sentences in which I state it. No communication I have addressed to the Congress carried with it graver or more far-reaching implications to the interest of the country, and I come now to speak upon a matter with regard to which I am charged in a peculiar degree, by the Constitution itself, with personal responsibility.

"I have come to ask for the repeal of that provision of the Panama Canal act of August 24, 1912, which exempts vessels engaged in the coastwise trade of the United States from payment of tolls and to urge upon you the justice, the wisdom and the large policy of such a repeal with the utmost earnestness of which I am capable.

"In my own judgment, very fully considered and maturely formed, that exemption constitutes a mistaken economic policy from every point of view and is, moreover, in plain contravention of the treaty with Great Britain concerning the canal concluded on November 18, 1901. But I have not come to you to urge my personal views. I have come to state to you a fact and a situation. Whatever may be our own differences of opinion concerning this much-debated measure, its meaning is not debated outside the United States.

"Everywhere else the language of the treaty is given but one interpretation, and that interpretation precludes the exemption I am asking you to repeal. We consented to the treaty; its language we accepted, if we did not originate it, and we are too big, too powerful, too self-respecting a nation to interpret with too strained or refined a reading the words of our own promises just because we have power enough to give us leave to read them as we please.

"The large thing to do is the only thing we can afford to do—a voluntary withdrawal from a position everywhere questioned and misunderstood. We ought to reverse our action without raising the question whether we were right or wrong, and so once more deserve our reputation for generosity and the redemption of every obligation without quibble or hesitation.

"I ask this of you in support of the foreign policy of the Administration. I shall not know how to deal with other matters of even greater delicacy and nearer consequence if you do not grant it to me in ungrudging measure."

AN INSURRECTION IN RIO JANEIRO

Brazilian Officers and Editor Placed Under Arrest.

CONDITIONS BECOME SERIOUS

Business Virtually Suspended In Several States In Which the Negro Population Predominates.

Rio Janeiro, Brazil.—The Brazilian government authorities proclaimed a state of siege in the cities of Rio Janeiro, Nictheroy and Petropolis. This is to remain in force until March 31.

The government's action is taken as a preventive measure against any possible troubles.

Disturbances were feared from certain elements of the population as a result of the recent insurrection in the Province of Ceara, where the situation is reported worse.

The managing editors of three of the principal newspapers—A Epoca, Correio Da Noite and O Imparcial—were placed under arrest, while Generals Thaumaturgo, Azevado and Feliciano Mondes de Morzes, two colonels and some other officers of the army were also made prisoners.

A strict censorship was immediately established by the government on telegraphic communications, and all the troops were confined to barracks in readiness for any eventualities.

There were no disorders in the federal capital.

Buenos Aires.—Reports have been current for some time that a revolutionary movement was in existence in the Brazilian States of Pernambuco, Ceara and Para, and that fighting was in progress between the local forces and the government authorities.

The causes of the disaffection were said to have been racial differences. In the last week of February a body of fanatics was reported to be marching on Rio Janeiro.

The situation in the various states was reported as becoming worse, especially in Ceara. Business was said to be virtually suspended in several states, chiefly those where the negro population was very numerous. The State of Ceara at the last census had a population of about 850,000. Para 450,000 and Pernambuco 1,200,000.

PRIEST KILLED IN NEW YORK.

Father Novak Falls Between Two Subway Cars.

New York.—The Rev. Alexis Novak, a Catholic priest, visiting here from Taylor, Pa., died in a hospital to which he had been removed after falling between two cars from a subway platform at Times Square. The police were unable to find any witnesses to tell how the accident occurred.

ARMY OF UNEMPLOYED ON HIKE.

24 Companies Of 90 Men Start From 'Frisco For Washington.

San Francisco.—An "army of the unemployed" broke camp on a vacant lot here and started on a march to Washington, D. C. There are 24 companies of 90 men each, and the men have all of the officers of a military regiment except a paymaster. They were led by buglers and drummers. "Gen." C. T. Kelly is the commanding officer.

TEXAS GOVERNOR IN MEXICAN GAME

Colquitt Demands Extradition of Vergara's Murderers.

BRYAN UPHOLDS DEMANDS.

Colquitt Declares He Has Just Gotten In the Fight To Maintain the Rights Of Citizens Of Texas and Will Go the Limit.

Dallas, Texas.—Governor O. B. Colquitt, of Texas, wired the Mexican federal authorities in Nuevo Leon State, Mexico, for the requisition of Apolonio Rodriguez and the five Mexicans charged jointly with him with the kidnapping of Clemente Vergara, an American citizen. The requisition is based on a charge of horse theft. Vergara was afterwards killed.

Governor Colquitt, discussing his action, said:

"I have just begun my fight to uphold the rights of the citizens of Texas. To say I am going the limit to protect the Americans in Texas from any harm from foreign invasions but mildly expresses it."

Since the disappearance of Vergara, which took place several weeks ago, it is pointed out, official consular and state reports have declared the Mexican federals executed the missing cattleman.

Washington.—The State of Nuevo Leon is practically controlled by the Mexican federals, although there are scattered bands of rebels there. Governor Colquitt's requisition will have to go to the Huerta governor at Monterey. Results of the Texas governor's latest move will be awaited with great interest in official circles here.

The request by Governor Colquitt, of Texas, upon the federal governor of Nuevo Leon for the extradition of those responsible for the kidnapping of Vergara occasioned much discussion in official circles here. The Texas governor had asked the State Department to tell him what it looked upon as the legally constituted government in Northern Mexico, for by the special treaty with Mexico extradition proceedings can be carried on between governors in adjacent border states without reference to the American State Department. Secretary Bryan suggested to Governor Colquitt that he might ask for the extradition of the offenders from "the governor of Nuevo Leon," leaving it to the Texas governor to determine who that individual was. The extradition has been asked for on the charge of horse stealing. State Department officials say that under the treaty the offenders, if extradited, could not be tried for murder, because Vergara was slain on Mexican soil.

BRYAN'S NEW GRANDCHILD.

Her Arrival Delays Important Conference With Diplomat.

Washington.—A new baby girl at Secretary Bryan's home here delayed a conference with the British ambassador and also the Cabinet meeting. Mr. Bryan telephoned his office and the White House that he would be late and announced the birth of a girl to his daughter, Mrs. Richard L. Hargreaves, of Lincoln, Neb. Mr. Bryan now has six grandchildren.

CANAL BUILDER GUEST OF HONOR

Notable Tribute Paid to Colonel Goethals.

PRESIDENT CONFERS MEDAL.

Members Of the Cabinet, Judges Of the Supreme Court and Many Prominent Officials Present.

Washington. — Washington paid tribute to Colonel George Washington Goethals, builder of the Panama Canal. The occasion was the annual banquet of the National Geographic Society, with Colonel Goethals present as the guest of honor, and to receive from the hand of President Wilson a special gold medal awarded him by the society in recognition of his wonderful achievement.

Secretary Bryan, of the State Department, was toastmaster, and gathered about the banquet table with the distinguished scientists of the society were President Wilson and his cabinet, justices of the Supreme Court, members of the diplomatic corps, high officers of the Army and Navy, leaders in both houses of Congress and other notable figures in the life of the national capital.

During the evening Jules L. Jusserand, the French ambassador, and dean of the diplomatic corps, was formally notified of his election to honorary membership in the society.

The banquet hall presented a striking scene. At one end, raised high above the table the words "Atlantic-Goethals-Pacific" blazed in brilliant electric letters as all other lights were extinguished. As though it had been pre-arranged this brought a roar of applause from the assemblage. Ice-cream was served the diners from miniature dredges, carried by waiters dressed in the uniform of the United States Engineer Corps, and followed by sailors bearing a tiny battleship. Individual dishes of cream appeared moulded in the shape of the Panama Canal dump car.

The medal awarded Colonel Goethals was of heavy Roman gold. It was given as an expression of the appreciation of the society and the nation of the Army engineer's distinguished service. Its presentation was the final act of President Wilson's first year as chief executive of the United States.

Inscribed on the medals were the words:

"This medal of the National Geographic Society is awarded to George Washington Goethals, to whose ability and patriotism the world owes the construction of the Panama Canal, March 3, 1914."

COUNSELOR MOORE QUITS JOB.

Chief Adviser On Foreign Affairs Out Of Wilson Administration.

Washington.—John Bassett Moore, counselor of the State Department and the recognized strong man of the present Administration on international questions, concluded his service with the Government Wednesday, when President Wilson accepted the resignation Dr. Moore had submitted a month ago. Coming at the present time when international affairs occupy the forefront of official and public attention, the departure of Dr. Moore from a position second only to that of Mr. Bryan attracted widespread attention and comment.

STOLE $10,000 IN CHECKS.

Arrest Of Negro Reveals Theft Of Mail Pouch.

Joliet, Ill.—The arrest of a negro youth here charged with attempting to pass a check on a saloonkeeper revealed to postoffice authorities the theft of a mail sack containing $10,000 in uncancelled checks. Leroy Martin, the negro, is said to have admitted lated to Samuel J. Killian that he and Walter Scott, another negro, had stolen the sack from the railroad station at Lockport, Ill., last night. Scott, he said, was to meet him at Bloomington tonight.

BANDIT ROBS A MAIL CAR.

Holds Up Clerk On Southern Train and Carries Off Registered Matter.

Columbia, S. C.—A bandit robbed the mail car of Southern Railway train No. 11, Charleston to Columbia, just as the train reached Columbia. The robber covered the mail clerk with a revolver, secured several sacks containing registered mail and jumped off the train. No arrests have been made. C. E. Thomas, in charge of the mail car, reported the robbery when the train reached the Union Station.

SIX DAYS WITHOUT FOOD.

West Virginia Farmer Dying From Exposure In Blizzard.

Parkersburg, W. Va.—Marooned in his farm house at Sandhil, this county, since Sunday, without food or drink and unable to provide himself with fuel, James Crooks, a farmer, was found unconscious by neighbors. He is in a dying condition from starvation and freezing. Crooks was a recluse for several years.

BANQUET FOR BUSINESS MEN

Thomas Martindale Carries Trade Boom to Neighbors

BIDS POTTSTOWN EXPAND

No More Potent Power for Good Than Organization—Officers Vigilant to Correct Evils or Advocate in Municipal Policy.

Pottstown.—Covers were laid for 125 at the first annual banquet of the Pottstown Business Men's Association, of which Thomas F. Stor is president. It was held at the Shuler House and Charles J. Custer acted as toastmaster. Among the out-of-town guests were Frank W. Bausium and H. R. Knapp, president and secretary, respectively, of the Pottsville Merchants' Association; Thomas Martindale, the well-known Philadelphia merchant; Edward James Cattell, statistician to Mayor Blankenburg, and former Receiver of Taxes Hugh Black. Mr. Martindale said: "There is no more potent power for good than an organization whose officers are ever vigilant to correct some evils or some injustice, or to advocate a change, perhaps, in some municipal policy. Organizations of this kind can work miracles for the common good and carry with thew a force of great power. What other cities have done in the past you, to a certain extent, can do."

Trolley Along Historic Spots.

Ephrata.—More than 300 men, many of them farmers, are working on the trolley line that will link Lebanon and Ephrata, passing through Lincoln, Clay Hopeland, Kleinfeltersville, Schaefferstown and Reistville, almost touching the spot where Kate Edwards, recently released from the Berks county prison, hid the hammer used in killing her husband, twelve years ago. The road also runs close to the places in the Welsh Mountain, where the late "Bully Lyons," a noted Reading detective, met Abe Buzzard, the outlaw, for whom he was searching and asked, "Did you see Abe Buzzard?" The latter replied, so that Lyons could not hear, "Yes, sir; he is just hitching up now to go away," and he did go, while Lyons proceeded over the mountain to continue his hunt.

Appeal from Dry Judges.

Huntington.—License Court, Judge Wood and Associates Beers and McCarthy on the bench, handed down a unanimous decision, refusing two wholesalers and five retailers, constituting all the liquor license apipcants in Huntington county. Accordingly the town and county will be dry after April 1. Frederick Orlady, counsel for the applicants, will take an appeal to the Superior Court on the ground that Associates Beers and McCarthy were unqualified to give impartial decision. If reversal is refused, hotel-keepers say they will close their hostelries.

Greater Armor Tests.

South Bethlehem.—The Bethlehem Steel Company will spend several thousand dollars in improvements to its Government armor-plate proving grounds at Redington. Gun foundations will be installed for proof-firing of three-inch to 18-inch guns. In the future the company's proving grounds willl be able to handle any ordnance material built by it, and a 125-ton electric traveling crane will be installed to handle the heaviest guns and armorplate manufactured.

Snow Saves Flaming Girl.

York.—Her clothing igniting from the flames of a gas stove, nine-year-old Louise, daughter of H. F. Regenthall, a candy manufacturer and ex-City Councilman, ran screaming out of the house. Passersby tossed her into the nearest snowbank and rolled her about until the blaze was extinguished. Her body above the waist was terribly scorched.

Burgess Can't Run Police.

Norristown.—Borough Solicitor Henry M. Brownback, in a long opinion, informed Council that the Watch and Lamp Committee, as heretofore, has the direction of the policemen while on duty, as well as having the power of appointment and dismissal, despite the opinion of the Rev. J. Elmer Saul, Burgess, elected on the Washington party ticket.

Twelve Baptized in Creek.

Waynesboro.—Twelve persons were immersed in the creek at the Daniel Hess farm, east of Waynesboro, by the Rev. H. Mitchell Stover, pastor of the German Brethern church.

Rabbit Eats From Man's Hand.

Lewistown.—Wild game is suffering from the severe weather in this section and the deep snow has caused much suffering among partridge and wild turkeys. In Oliver township, a farmer noticed a rabbit on a boardwalk near the house and holding out a piece of apple in his hand, the animal was so hungry that it ate from his hand. Clayton Moist and Andrew Hambright, of McVeytown, carried two bushels of corn to a ridge near that place, through a deep snow to feed turkeys and other game.

HOLTON OF THE NAVY

A STORY OF THE FREEING OF CUBA

SYNOPSIS.

Lieutenant Holton is detached from his command in the navy at the outset of the Spanish-American war and assigned to important secret service duty. While dining at a Washington hotel he detects a waiter in the act of robbing a beautiful young lady. She thanks him for his service and gives her name as Miss La Tossa, a Cuban patriot. Later he meets her at a ball. A secret service man warns Holton that the girl is a spy. Miss La Tossa leaves for her home in Cuba. Holton is ordered to follow her. They meet on the Tampa train. Miss La Tossa tells Holton she is a Cuban spy and expresses doubt regarding the sincerity of the United States. Holton is ordered to remain at Tampa to guard the troop transports. He saves the transports from destruction at the hands of dynamiters and reports to Admiral Sampson for further duty. Holton is sent to General Garcia's command in the guise of a newspaper correspondent to investigate Cuban plots against the American troops and to learn the plans of the Spanish navy. He detects a trusted Cuban leader in the work of fomenting trouble among the Cubans in the interests of the Spaniards. Holton is seized by friends of the spy and later ordered executed as a spy. He escapes and saves the American troops from falling into a Spanish ambush. He learns from General Garcia that the spy is Jose Cesnola, one of the most trusted leaders. Holton takes part in the battle at San Juan. Disguised as a Spanish soldier he enters Santiago, goes at night to the home of Miss La Tossa, where he overhears a discussion of the Spanish plans by leading army and navy commanders. He learns that the Spanish fleet will leave the harbor at Santiago on July 3. Holton escapes and arrives in sight of the American fleet in time to see the admiral's flagship sail away. After frantic signaling he is answered by the Brooklyn. He warns Schley of the intentions of the Spanish fleet and witnesses the destruction and capture of the enemy's vessels. Holton learns that Shafter has received a message from President McKinley declaring that the war was instituted for the sole purpose of freeing Cuba. He learns that a meeting of dissatisfied Cubans is to be held that night to plot against the American army. He gives Miss La Tossa the president's message. He spies on the meeting and hears Cesnola attempt to inflame the Cubans against the Americans. Miss La Tossa denounces Cesnola and reads McKinley's message. Garcia and his soldiers place Cesnola under arrest. Later he is ordered executed. The Spanish forces surrender and Shafter enters Santiago.

CHAPTER XVI.

A Frightful Revelation.

Holton's ride back to the city was the most forlorn he had ever taken. In the flash of a hand he had been lowered from the heights of ecstasy to the depths of despair. A beautiful dream had been lived out, and the bitter realities of waking had come.

As he sat before his tent thinking, a man paused in front of him, holding his broad sombrero in his hand. As Holton glanced at him curiously his face lighted with recognition.

"Pierre!" he cried, rising. "What do you want?"

The Cuban nodded to him gravely.

"Can you come with me, Lieutenant Holton? It is very important."

Holton, without replying, accompanied the Cuban.

The two hurried along until at length the Cuban stopped in front of a long, rambling, one-story building, evidently used at one time as a barracks for the Spanish soldiers. He leaned down and took off his shoes, motioning Holton to do likewise.

Realizing that the situation was rife with importance, the American sat down and complied without a word.

Then, rising in his stocking feet, Pierre took from his pocket a key, unlocked the door, and entered, motioning Holton to follow. After they were both inside, the Cuban closed the door and locked it, withdrawing the key and placing it in his pocket again.

"She has not arrived yet," remarked Pierre. "I am happy. I feared it would be too late."

"Too late for what? Who did you expect to find here?" whispered Holton, almost irritably.

For answer Pierre squeezed his arm and silently pointed out into the night.

Following the man's finger, Holton saw the form of a woman alighting from a pony. As his eyes strained he recognized Miss La Tossa.

By her side was a man and, as his face turned toward the building, Holton gasped and whispered hoarsely to his companion:

"Give me that key!"

The Cuban's hand tightened on his arm like a vise.

"No—come. I am certain now the way is clear. I feared he was below. It is all right Come."

Something in the fellow's manner made Holton's obedience implicit. Without a word he followed the man. The Cuban had lighted a candle. Following the light, Holton could see a long tunnel opening before him. In the apartment itself were several electrical appliances, and a push-button was in the wall.

Holton marveled greatly at what he was going through, but the man he had seen with Miss La Tossa was uppermost in his mind.

"I thought that fellow, Cesnola, was dead," he said tensely.

For the man with the girl was none other than that of the omnipresent and apparently immortal waiter of the New Willard.

Pierra laughed without mirth.

"The man is a devil!" he replied. "The firing party at his execution was selected by an officer friendly to him. They shot over his head. He pretended death. Thus he escaped. General Garcia was tricked by his own men."

Holton nodded.

"But what is the meaning of all these instruments?" he asked. "And why have you brought me here?"

The man faced Holton gravely.

"This tunnel," he answered, "leads under the heart of Santiago. At short distances it is packed with dynamite. This key will release the spark that sets it off. It is the plan that the city and the American soldiers shall be blown to pieces, after which, the Cuban soldiers pow gathered on the secret trail, leading into the town, will rush in and assume control."

"And Miss La Tossa?" he asked quaveringly.

"Senorita has been selected to press the button. I have brought you here to stop her. To save the city, to save the Americans, to save herself, for when that button is pressed she dies here." Pierre sank on his knees. "Oh, Mr. Holton, save her! She loves you. You love her! Save her. You can, and you alone can."

Holton struck the man on the shoulder and his voice was stern.

"I will save her," he paused. "So help me, Pierre, I will!"

The candle was blown out and the two waited in the darkness.

"But why," whispered Holton, "has Miss La Tossa volunteered for this work?"

"Because," was the reply, "the person who presses that button will never leave this place. It is intended that it shall be destroyed so that no trace of the mystery will ever be found."

Holton's heart grew sick. Undoubtedly the girl, in her blind, patriotic fury, had come forward as a martyr to give her life for the country she loved.

At the moment there was the sound of a lock turning and then the door creaked. Holton and Pierre were lying behind some wine-casks. The next instant they knew the girl was in the apartment with them.

They heard a match strike. Evidently she had lighted a lantern, for a soft yellow glow filled the place. And now Holton, peering through a crack between two casks, saw her.

Holton arose silently and stole to a position directly in front of the switch key. When she returned she found him there with arms folded, standing as immobile as a statue.

She did not scream. Her lips parted and she stood still, staring at him with dilated eyes. So they stood for the space of a minute. To Holton it seemed an eternity. Then she spoke.

"You!" Her voice was deep, but expressionless.

"It is I, Miss La Tossa," responded Holton.

"Why—why have you come here?"

"I have come to save you from yourself. You are in the grip of a great misunderstanding."

Before Holton's steady, compassionate gaze, the girl's eyes fell. It was as though some message from the American's heart had reached her. At any rate, her voice became more gentle.

"You must leave me, Lieutenant Holton," she resumed. "I—I—"

She paused, realizing what it would mean to have Holton leave her to perform her deadly task of shattering the city and its American occupants. This thought caused her to reel.

Then, as though with the flashing swiftness of lightning, she sprang toward the officer and threw one arm around his neck, the other reaching over and touching the electric button.

"Now, Mr. Holton," she cried, "if you move I shall press—"

Before she could complete her sentence Holton raised his shoulder ever so slightly and her finger was thus removed at least an inch out of reach of the little knob. She tried to spring away from him, but Holton held her.

"Miss La Tossa," he began, "I came here because I love you—that is my only thought. I love you. I have loved you since I first saw you. I have spoken to you concerning the Americans as a man would speak to the woman he loves, with the whole truth in my heart. I have talked, since I saw you this morning, with scores of high officers, and I can tell you that what I have already said to you is the whole truth.

"Cuba is certainly and surely to be left to the Cubans. England, France, Germany, Italy—all great countries have been officially assured by the state department that it is to be. But first, order must be restored here and the wheels of government set going. To that end General Wood is to be appointed military governor, and in good time every single American soldier will leave this island. There is no doubt about that. Ah, Miss La Tossa, believe me! For, as God is my judge, I have spoken only the truth.

"One moment," as she essayed to speak. "Losing you is a price too great for me to pay—even when it involves saving my countrymen. No, I cannot lose you—and live. I do not wish to live. And so—you have not believed me. Every look, every word of yours tells me you regard me as a liar. So be it."

He moved away from the push-button and folded his arms.

"You are now at perfect liberty to press that button. I shall not interfere. I shall stay here and die with you. That is my wish. Life means nothing now for me."

A cry of horror broke from the girl. She stood swaying, surveying the two with staring eyes. Her gaze at length fastened upon Holton, standing there, his arms folded, his broad shoulders heaving, his dark, handsome face turned to her with an expression of great tenderness.

Something in his eyes, something magnetic, the power of his great love for her, the intensity of his emotions rivited her gaze to his face.

Slowly, in spite of herself, she crept toward him, fascinated.

"Ranee! How my arms have ached for you. How my heart has bled for you! Ranee! Come."

With a low cry the girl sprang to him. In his powerful arms he caught her. She looked up at him and kissed her. Her hands caressed his face. She drew his head down once more to her lips.

And thus in the darkness, with potential death all about, love, the conqueror, triumphed.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Day of Peace.

Ten minutes, perhaps, had elapsed when Pierre, who had thoughtfully wandered away down the tunnel, reappeared with a warning "Ahem!"

Holton, exalted to the seventh heaven of happiness, glanced at Pierre, and then striding to the Cuban, he seized him by the arm and led him forcibly into the tunnel again.

"Now then, Pierre," he laughed, "you stay here until I call, or I'll set you down on some of this dynamite and press the button."

So saying, he returned to Miss La Tossa and gave such an account of himself as a young man very much in love with a beautiful young woman may be expected to give.

A little later they made their way out of the building. Her pony was still standing where she had hitched it, but Cesnola and his horse were gone. At least, Holton assumed that Cesnola had gone from the fact that his horse had departed.

As they walked to the girl's pony, though, Holton, with a sudden exclamation, leaned forward. There, almost at his feet, lay the body of a man. The girl saw it almost at the same instant.

"What is it?" she asked tremulously.

"A man," was the solemn reply.

Holton lighted a match and bent over the body. Then he straightened up as though he had been struck in the face.

"It is Cesnola!" he whispered breathlessly.

"Cesnola!" She bent down until her face was close to the dead man, and her hand, reaching out, came in contact with a knife. This she withdrew, and, standing up, trembling, she held it toward Holton.

"You must get rid of this!" she cried.

"Rid of it! Why?"

"Because it is Pierre's knife."

In a flash Holton saw it all. Pierre, coming out had seen the spy waiting for the explosion. Filled with hatred for the man who had led his beloved Ranee into this situation, he had promptly paid off the score.

"Give me the knife." Holton wrapped the thing in his handkerchief, and in good season contrived to place it where it would never be found, which is getting a bit ahead of the story.

In the meantime the two wended their way toward headquarters, Holton leading the horse, the girl walking very close to his side. The recent ordeal, coupled with the discovery of the body of Cesnola, had unnerved her, and occasionally a dry sob broke from her lips.

Holton decided that, more than anything else, she needed lights, good cheer, and good food. So they went to the Venus restaurant, and there, amid all the brilliancy of its military patrons, the blushes returned to the girl's cheeks and the laughter to her lips.

After their meal Holton and the girl set out for the La Tossa estate, the girl on her pony and Holton on a horse he borrowed from one of the general's aides.

When they reached the estate it was nearly midnight. Ranee was delighted to find awaiting her a message from her father in Havana, assuring her that he was well, and that through force of circumstances he would remain in that city until the result of the present campaign was determined.

The girl wept over the letter as she handed it to Holton.

"Poor, dear father!" she cried. "I trust he is happy—as happy as—as."

Holton crushed her to his breast.

* * * * * * * * *

As to the war, but little remained. The fleet of Cervera had been wiped out, and thus shorn of sea power, there was really little use in resistance on land. So it came about that peace was agreed upon by commissioners of the two countries.

It was on this day that Holton, with a long leave of absence, and many flattering official papers in his luggage, stood on the deck of a great transatlantic liner, looking down upon the crowd assembled on pier and bulkhead to wave farewell and Godspeed to friends and relatives who were hurrying to the continent to spend the last brilliant days of the waning summer away from the scenes of bloodshed and disease.

Close by his side, with her arm tightly locked in his, was a girl so radiant that she attracted the attention of everyone who passed the little group. She had just kissed her father good-by and he was turning to leave the ship.

"And you, Thomas," he said, "will not be selfish. You will let my daughter come to me on the estate frequently."

"As frequently as she wishes," laughed Holton, "when I am doing my two years' sea service."

The father laughed and waved good-by. But just before the ship sailed they made out his figure dashing to the end of the bulkhead.

"Father!" cried the girl, "what is it?"

Senor La Tossa held aloft an evening newspaper.

"Peace!" he cried. "Peace has been declared."

"She turned to Holton.

"Peace," she smiled.

Holton pressed her arm.

"Was there ever anything but peace—anywhere in all the world?" he whispered.

(THE END.)

INNOVATION MAY NOT WORK

Weak Human Nature Likely to Spoil Laudable Move Made by an Eastern Railroad.

In announcing a breakfast car service for commuters an eastern railroad evidently seeks to discourage the reprehensible practice of sprinting for the morning train, and the still more reprehensible practice of missing it. But there appears some danger that the innovation may fail of its laudable purpose, remarks the Newark Star. The average commuter's last moments is too deeply ingrained to be broken. The time saved by not breakfasting at home will be devoted to 40 extra winks. As it is now, when Mr. Howson Lott, of Lonesomehurst, hears the chugging of his train leaving the next station up the road it is the signal for him as he struggles with his necktie to yell down stairs, "Maria, have Bridget pour the coffee. Under the new order of things the same sound will be the reveille for him to jump out of bed and shed his pajamas. And then, too, what about the card playing contingent? How can the commuter expect to reach his office in a proper frame of mind for business if he has been wasting upon breakfast the time consecrated to the regular morning game? Pinocle and pancakes are plainly incompatible.

Misapplied Force.

The force expended by dissatisfied persons on efforts to escape their surroundings would often pluck the string out of the incongruities of their situation, and track them to whole hives of honey.—Samuel Johnson.

COMMERCIAL

Weekly Review of Trade and Market Reports.

Dun's Review says:

"Traffic blockade hampered freight movements and reduced receipts resulted in higher prices for various food products. While weather conditions had a tendency to check progress in commercial and industrial channels, reports from the leading centers continues optimistic in tenor. Best news emanated from those lines benefiting by the low temperatures, notably heavy-weight apparel, footwear and fuel.

"Failures numbered 350 in the United States against 263 last year."

Bradstreet's says:

"Basic developments continue favorable, notwithstanding the fact that heavy snowstorms and very low temperatures during the forepart of the week hampered trade, curtailed traffic and delayed mail matter. In consequence of these apparently adverse elements house-buying did not expand to the degree expected. Yet the past few days of sunshine brought out numerous visiting buyers in the principal centers, and as a result business shows a relatively good expansion."

The play in the Boal hall on Friday evening was very much enjoyed by those who were fortunate enough to get there. On account of the inclement weather many were prevented from going.

Senator Enos M. Jones and wife of Altoona are spending a few weeks in the Panama district. His cousin, Mrs. E. E. Brown, recived a card from him, showing the Bay of Panama and Acorn Hill. Mention was made that March 1st was like a beautiful morning in June. Their return trip will begin on the 15th inst.

The writer was informed by Mrs. John F. Zeigler of Altoona of the death of her aunt, Mrs. Annie Windsor, which occurred recently at the home of her daughter, Mrs. McKeldin, at Knoxville, Tennessee. Mrs. Windsor was the last one of the Michael Wieland family of near Linden Hall. The greater part of her married life was spent in the southern states.

George Stone, a veteran of the Civil War, died at the home of his son George at Wilkensburg on the 6th. The remains were brought to Boalsburg on Monday afternoon for interment. A short funeral service was held in the Lutheran church, conducted by Rev. J. I Stonecipher. He was a member of Co. B, 148th Regt. He had enlisted August 29 1862, and was discharged by general order July 12 1865. He was about eighty-four years of age.

At first, it has been contended, men used both arms indifferently, and those who when fighting pushed the right side forward had the advantage of shielding their hearts and so lived to produce descendants who inherited their tendencies. Be this as it may, there is no doubt that the two sides of the brain have different functions, and right or left-handedness is by no means restricted to the arms alone. One investigator was very often able to recognize left-handedness by the examination of the left eye. The center of speech is on the left side of the brain of a right-handed person, and on the right side of that of a left-handed person. Children show unmistakable evidence of two speech centers, though one atrophies owing to the preference given to one hand. Nevertheless, experiments show that it can be successfully resuscitated.—Knowledge.

Unconventionalities.

"It was printed in your paper, was it, mister? That's the reason I didn't see it."

"You don't seem to notice, Gerald, that it's nearly midnight, and I'm yawning to beat the band!"

"There's no need of your apologizing for these sliced tomatoes, Mrs. Nayber; I saw they were spoiled, and I haven't touched 'em."

"Yes, I notice, Mrs. Sykes, that your boy Bill takes my Mary Jane to the moving picture shows quite often. What she sees in him I can't imagine."

"Oh, well, Mrs. Glizzard, my Bill goes to see your Mary Jane because nobody else does; he kind o' pities her."—Chicago Tribune.

Treatment for Nervous Child.

With highly strung children there is a sad readiness to pick up nervous tricks from their elders. Thus from one he learns to stammer, while from another he adopts various nervous movements of the muscles of the face or limbs. Such children need to be well fed and kept as much as possible in the open air, to lead a quiet life without excitement, and without overexercise of the brain. Above all, they must be kept as much as possible away from those people from whom they seem to be taking the tricks of nervousness

By measuring how far an electric current can jump through the air from one piece of metal to another electricians can determine the voltage of a current; and it is by setting a current to making broad jumps and then scoring the feat with a tape measure that the very high voltages used nowadays are ordinarily measured. But the judges of these athletic feats have recently determined that the electricity jumps much more surely from some sparks than from others, just as a man is not likely to jump so well from a mud spot as from firm ground.

Spark gaps, as these jump measures are called because of the great electric spark that jumps across the gap, have been made of needlepoints, says the Saturday Evening Post. Now it has been found that if metal spheres are used, and the electricity made to jump from one to the other, the result is more accurate; and sphere spark gaps are replacing the needlepoint jumps.

Even with spheres to jump from the athletic electricity is not entirely satisfied unless each sphere is as big in dameter as the jump the current expected to make. With such spheres the spark of a current of 500,000 voltage will break down when the spheres are a little more than 15 inches apart.

Ugly and Prosperous.

It is said that Oldham, in Lancashire, England, is the ugliest town on earth and the most prosperous town in Britain, says the Indianapolis News. In and about this place there are 250,000 people, about as many as are now claimed for Indianapolis, but compared with this city few there are the world 'round who ever heard of Oldham, which has more spindles going than France and Germany together. "Ugly as it is," says a correspondent, "there is no town in the world where so many of the workers own the houses in which they live." In this town they have 17,750,000 cotton spindles. One works employs 12,000 men and boys. But, though thrifty and money-savers, the inhabitants are the saddest looking people in Lancashire, and the public houses are quite too liberally patronized.

Hare Enjoyed the Singing.

The late Rev. R. Eastcrote of Exeter, England, once told the story of five choristers who, one Sunday evening, were walking along the banks of the Mersey in Cheshire. After a time they sat down on the grass and began to sing an anthem. A hare passing with great swiftness toward the place where they were sitting stopped at about 20 yards' distance from them. She appeared to be highly delighted with the music, and as soon as the singing ceased returned slowly to the wood. When she had nearly reached the end of the field the choristers began to sing again. The hare stopped, turned round and came swiftly to the same place, and remained listening in seeming rapture and delight until the singing ceased, when she returned to the wood.

GET LIVING AMUSING OTHERS

Roughly Estimated, Ten Per Cent. of the Population Caters to the Pleasure of the Rest.

It has been roughly estimated that 10 per cent. of us, the people of the United States, keep busy and earn our living by amusing the other 90 per cent., according to the World's Work. This 10 per cent. includes those who do the actual work of amusing; singers in grand opera, light opera, concert; actors in the "legitimate" theaters, vaudeville, in burlesque, in small shows; performers in the various departments of the innumerable circuses, carnivals, street fairs, baseball players, football players, basket ball players, motor races, aviators, boxers, innumerable exponents of innumerable forms of professional sports.

It includes also the people who promote these amusements; who incorporate companies and manufacture devices to be used in amusing—film companies with armies of employes in the moving picture field, for example; the people in their large office forces; the people who manage and direct theaters, amusement parks, race courses, athletic fields, etc.; stage hands, mechanicians, electricians and employes in countless other ramifications of the general business of amusement.

It includes those who originate schemes of entertainment, those who finance them, those who manage them, those who execute them, those press agents, advance men, sign painters, "spielers" and "barkers," etc., who advertise them and draw the attention of the rest of us—the patrons who comprise the other 90 per cent.

OTHER "ISTS" A POOR SECOND

Pessimist and Optimist Alike Had to Yield the Palm to the Quiet, Undisturbed Fatalist.

Three students of philosophy sat on top of a high hill. One was a pessimist, one an optimist and the third had not declared himself.

While the first were warmly discussing their opposing theories of life, a sudden gust of wind simultaneously lifted off three hats and sent them bowling down the hill. The pessimist and the optimist gave chase, but their companion remained calmly sitting on top of the hill and watched the others running after the hats. Presently each procured his own hat and the optimist picked up also that of the third man. Then they panted back up the hill.

"Whew!" gasped the optimist, as he handed over the hat to him who still sat on top of the hill. "I guess you're an optimist, too. You didn't seem to worry any."

"Why should I?" was the dispassionate reply. "I knew that 'mine own shall come to me.' You see, I am a fatalist."—Lippincott's Magazine.

DEATHS.

Mrs. P. A. Markel died at the home of her son, A. J. Markel, four miles south of Hoisington, Kansas, February 19th, at the age of sixty-five years, ten months, and ten days Priscilla Agnes Sunday was born in Centre county, Pa., April 9th, 1848, was united in marriage to Henry Markel of the same county on September 15th, 1864. To this union ten children were born, of whom eight are living: Mrs. Mary Hull, Spaulding, Iowa; Mrs. Cora Hull, Prairie View, Kansas; Mrs. H. J. Folsom, Hoisington, Kansas; Mrs. Minnie Loe, Palco, Kansas; J. L. Markel, Palco, Kansas; Mrs. N. E. Wisner, Meridian, Idaho; A. J. Markel, Hoisington, Kansas; Mrs. Hiram Wickham, Simpson, Kansas. Mr. and Mrs. Markel and their family went to Kansas in 1875, locating in Smith county. In 1889 they moved to Iowa and 1890 again returned to Kansas locating at Plainville. April 7th, 1897, Mr. Markel died.

Mrs. Markel made her home, after the death of her husband until she moved to Hoisington in August, 1913, with her son, A. J. Markel, at Plainville. Short funeral services were held at the home of her daughter, Mrs H. J. Folsom, Sunday afternoon and Tuesday following the body was shipped to Plainville, where interment was made beside her husband. She was converted in 1871, and became a member of the Evangelical church. In 1890 she joined the Methodist church at Plainville, and remained such until her death. Funeral services were held at the Methodist church at Plainville. The sons and daughters greatly feel the loss of her presence as she was a kind and loving mother.

The community was shocked on Tuesday forenoon to hear of the death of Fergus Potter, Esq., of Harris township, who died at ten o'clock while seated in the home of his cousin, Miss Mary Potter, a fourth mile distant from his residence. Mr. Potter was engaged in conversation, and was in best of spirits, when suddenly he closed his eyes and laid his head back on his chair, and without the slightest struggle death overtook him.

Mr. Potter was the only son of Robbert Potter and was born in Somerset county. He came to the place with his parents where they died many years ago, and lived there continuously. After the death of his parents he and his sisters kept up the home, and two of the five sisters—Mary Ann and Phoebe—survive the brother.

Interment will be made at the Branch cemetery in the Robert Potter family plot on Friday morning, services at the house at 9:30. The officiating ministers will be Dr. W. H. Schuyler, Rev. F. H. Foss and Rev. W. K. Harnish. His age was seventy-seven years, five months and one day.

'Squire Potter was highly thought of in the community in which he lived. He was a school teacher, and as such was highly successful, as will be attested to by many of his pupils. He served as a justice of the peace for twenty-five years or more, being elected by the voters of Harris township.

Miss Renna Wray Shires, daughter of Michael and Chestina Vienna Shires, died March 7th, 1914, at her home with her parents, 1301 Linden Street, Scranton, after an illness of about two weeks.

The deceased was born at Potters Mills, and is survived by her parents and two brothers, Wilbur M., Lewistown, and Master Drew S., at home, an only sister, Kathryn E., having died a little over one year ago.

Miss Shires was an active and consistent member of Elm Park M. E church, Sunday-school and Epworth League.

Public funeral services were held by her pastor at her parents' residence, on Wednesday morning at 10:30. Interment private in vault at Dunmore cemetery. Under the direction of Prof. John T. Watkins select voices from the Elm Park Choral Society of which she was also a member rendered appropriate selections.

While cruel Death temporarily conquered her mortal body, through an unfaltering faith in her Savior Jesus Christ, her spirit beautifully triumphed over the King of Terrors as she said just before she passed away, "my pathway to the skies is bright" and "He has promised me a home over there."

Her funeral was attended by her many relatives and friends both from home and abroad, and the high esteem in which she was held was evidenced by many beautiful floral tributes.

It is possible that some few of the older residents of Centre Hall and Boalsburg still remember a former resident of both places, Sarah E Peters, and it might be of passing notice to them to know that she passed away at her western home in St. Joseph, Missouri, on February 26th, and was buried in that city. Her maiden name was Curry. She was born in Centre county, west of Boalsburg. Her mother dying while she was very young she was reared in the family of an aunt. In 1864 she was married to Joseph Peters who was also born in Centre county, and whom she survived nearly twenty-five years Soon after her marriage she and her husband moved to Missouri but soon afterwards returned and on their return made their home for sometime in Centre Hall, and then in Boalsburg In 1879 they again removed to St. Joseph, Missouri, where she resided until the time of her death. She is survived by one sister, Mrs. D. M. Cowher, who resides in the western part of Pennsylvania, and six children, namely: P. B. S. Peters, director of the business course in the Manual Training High School, Kansas City, Missouri; Mrs. Elsie Marnell, Mary Peters, Mrs. F. A Benjamin, Bettie Peters, all of St. Joseph, Missouri; and E. A. Peters, St. Louis, Missouri.

The primary cause of death was from the result of a fall several years ago which injured her hip, and from the effects of which she never fully recovered.

David Wance, A Civil War veteran, died on Sunday morning at his home in Aaronsburg, aged seventy-five years. He had been a great sufferer from a complication of diseases. Interment was made on Wednesday forenoon in the Lutheran cemetery in Aaronsburg.

The deceased was twice married. The first wife—Sarah Dunkle—died twenty years ago. The second wife—Anna Dress—survives, as do also thirteen of the fourteen children born to these unions.

Mrs. Wilbur M. Shires died in Lewistown on Saturday, and interment was made Tuesday forenoon. Her two children preceded her to the grave. Her husband, who survives, is a son of Michael Shires of Scranton, formerly of Potters Mills.

Mrs. Emily Beckel Crittenden, wife of Rev. R. Crittenden, died at her home in Bethlehem, aged sixty-five years, ten months and twenty-two days. She was formely a resident of Bellefonte.

Leister-Aurand.

Frank S. Leister of Centre Hall and Miss Retta Aurand of Lewistown were united in marriage at the Reformed parsonage, Lewistown, by Rev. Rhoads, on Saturday evening, the last day of February. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Aurand of near Lewistown. The young couple will begin life on the the groom's father's farm near Potters Mills. Congratulations.

REBERSBURG

Mrs. F. A. Auman is on the sick list at present.

Prof Elmer Bierly of Tennessee is at present visiting his aged mother, Mrs. Joseph Bierly.

Lloyd and Milton Stover both of Millheim spent last Sunday in town with relatives.

George Homan is at present traveling through this valley buying up a car load of horses.

Mrs. George Haines, who was on the sick list last week, is again able to be up and about.

Curtis Bierly of Dents Run is at present shaking hands with his many friends at this place.

John Rupp, who spent several weeks at State College on special business, has returned to this place.

On Sunday evening, Margaret, daughter of Tax Collector Smull, was married to James Confer of Millheim.

Wm. Bierly has employed Wallace Dabler to assist him in selling candies, cigars, and peanuts at the public sales.

Mrs. David Diehl, who was visiting her husband at Pittsburgh for several weeks, returned to this place last Saturday.

Charles Faxon and family who had been visiting relatives in Berks county for the last month, have returned to this place.

Newton Brungart, who had been seriously ill with pneumonia, we are glad to note, is at present on a fair way to recovery.

Sumner Stover, who at present resides several miles east of Wolfs Store, has rented a home near Smullton and will move there this coming spring.

George Grenninger and family of Illinois arrived at this place on last Thursday, and have rented a home in Rebersburg and will make their future home at this place.

On Saturday while Wallace Bierly was returning home from Millheim and while driving through the narrows his horse instantly dropped dead in the shafts. This is quite a loss to Mr. Bierly.

The strong winds the other night unroofed the manure shed on the farm of Jared Kreamer east of town The roof was galvanized iron, and was carried across several fields, and finally lodged against a fence.

Mrs. Robert Diehl moved last Tourasday from Rockville to this place and will now occupy the Scholl home for a few months, while Mrs. Scholl and her daughter Emma are visiting relatives at Pittsburgh.

Rev. F. H. Foss was returned to the Centre Hall charge by the United Evangelical Conference.

TYPICAL DINNER IN FRANCE

Princess Hassan Tells of a Meal and Its Service in the Land of True Epicures.

A typical French dinner—not an exceptional one, mark you, but such a dinner as a small tradesman's family would have—is incomparably superior to the plain roast dinner.

There would be, first of all, a few relishes, according to the season of the year. Radishes, ice cold, sardines, olives, caviar. Just a little of each with which to awaken the appetite, then the soup to excite gently the liquids of the throat and stomach, then a little entree—usually a bit of fish with its appropriate vegetable, or a handful of vegetables flavored with meat sauce. Then, and not till then, does the chief course appear.

It may be a roast, or game, or chicken, or chops, but in no case will it be anything which is not in harmony with the previous courses and it will be eaten in moderation, for the edge of the diner's appetite will have been dulled by the lighter foods which have preceded it. With it comes the salad—varied throughout the year by all the possible changes of the season, and never, never by any possibility will it be such a dreadful green hybrid as the romaine, strawberry and green pepper thing. After the salad there will be fruit or mellow cheese, and then coffee. It will take two hours to eat such a dinner, but it will take only half what the typical American dinner costs to pay for it, and there will be no indigestion afterward, no matter of what the dinner is composed.—Princess Hassan in an Interview by Louise Rice in the Delineator.

GIVE THIS A LITTLE THOUGHT

There Is a Point to This Imported Joke, But Perhaps You Will Have To Look for It.

This is not an American joke. The reader is solemnly warned that it is of German extraction. Germans, as everybody knows, like their jests broad and brutal. The victim of this one was Cousin Hugo.

It seems Cousin Hugo made a night of it and got home as the small hours began to cease to be so small. As he climbed the stairs he stumbled (in spite of the most elaborate care) and rolled down into the hall below. The consequence, for Cousin Hugo is not so young as he used to be, was a broken collarbone and a strained back. Ahead even of the milkman, then, came the family doctor, an estimable old gentleman, and administered soothing words while he encased the patient in plaster.

"I know, my dear sir," he said, "that it hurts like the deuce, but it is not a bit dangerous. All the same you'll have to stay in bed for a while. You got a nasty fall. How did it happen? Was it dark?"

"It was not, doctor," replied Cousin Hugo with some asperity, "It was light."

Curing Wood.

Wood has contagious diseases! A stick of wood in a lumber yard may be sick and infect other timbers, which later may develop the disease when they are supporting weights in a new building. Some of the diseases are so contagious that in a building they will jump several feet across masonry or brick to some stick of healthy wood. Cures were recently discussed by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Most of the diseases are varieties of dry rot caused by a fungus, and most of the varieties of dry rot fungus cannot stand heat much over 100 degrees; so the most likely cure is to close a building up tight, if any beams are infected, and heat it up to 120 or 140 degrees. Even this is not always successful, for ends of beams are buried in the outer brick walls and the heat may not reach them.—Saturday Evening Post.

Says Ants Do Not Co-Operate.

M. Cornetz, a practised observer of insect life, asserts that ants know nothing of co-operation in their social life. In proof he cites an experiment which any one can repeat. Offer an ant a piece of cheese shaped like a shuttle; it seizes the tip, turns it about and starts dragging it in the direction of its nest. Other ants arrive and seize the cheese by its sides. It continues to advance, but more slowly. There is no united effort; each ant is trying to turn the crumb of cheese around. If we chase off the ants on the right the cheese will turn to the right, for the other ants are pushing it. Chase off those on the left and it turns to the left for the same reason. Chase off the one that is pulling it and it stands still, for the ants on each side counteract each other.

M. Cornetz holds this a proof that each ant is acting for himself alone.

China "Called" Livingstone.

It is not generally known that Livingstone originally had the intention of devoting himself to the work of "a pioneer of Christianity in China." It was as such that he offered himself to the London Missionary society in 1837, but when he had received his diploma from the faculty of physicians and surgeons in 1840, he found China closed to him, as Great Britain was then at war with the country. It was his meeting with Moffat, who had recently returned from South Africa, that led his steps to the Dark Continent.

Jekyll and Hyde Both Out.

One day Mr. Jenkins, senior partner in the firm, came out of his private office and handed Jimmy, the office boy, a slip of paper and said:

"Here, Jimmy, go over to the public library and get me 'Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.' I have written it on a piece of paper for you so that you will not forget."

Jimmy lost the slip of paper on the way. When he discovered his loss he returned to the office without going to the library and was seated at his little desk innocently shooting flies with a rubber band when Mr. Jenkins said to him:

"Well, Jimmy, where's 'Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde?'"

"Please, Mr. Jenkins," responded Jimmy with well feigned candor, "the lady at the library said they both just went to the ball game and to call for them in the morning."

Old Town Again in Limelight.

Stockwell, England, where a hidden church over 600 years old has just been discovered, has hitherto been chiefly famous for its ghost, which set all London in an uproar in 1772. Making the furniture dance and the crockery fall was the ghost's specialty, though by way of variety an egg once flew across the room and hit the cat. Having excited London and frightened Stockwell, the ghost retired, leaving behind a firm belief in his supernatural origin, until many years later a servant admitted that long horse hairs attached to the crockery and wires to the furniture had enabled her to play the ghost so successfully that frightened beholders never even detected such open feats as throwing the egg at the cat.

SOME HARD SLUGGERS

MANY BATTING STARS ARE OVERLOOKED IN THE BUSHES.

But Three Leaders in Minor Leagues Landed by Big Organizations—Twenty-One Remain With Last Year's Clubs.

Notwithstanding the fact that the major leagues had an army of scouts scouring the minor organizations for talent last season, but three leaders in minor league batting were landed. All three go to the American league—Chappell, who led the American association, belongs to the Chicago White Sox; Wilson, the New England league leader, has been signed by the Boston Red Sox, and Kavanaugh, the Tri-State league batting champion, has been drafted by the Detroit Tigers.

Of the 33 players who top the batting list in their respective leagues, 21 will remain with the same teams with which they played last season. To Ty Cobb belongs the honor of being the best hitter in major league company, while in Malmquist the York club of the little Nebraska State league produced the top-notch batting star of the season. Malmquist, who goes to the Oshkosh club, finished the season with a batting average of .477. His figures show that he was at bat 323 times.

The batting championship titles are given to those players who finished the season with the best average after participating in at least one-half of the regularly scheduled games. The batting leaders, with their averages and the team to which they are to report in 1914, follow:

American Association—Chappell of Milwaukee club (.355), reports in 1914 to Chicago (A. L.).

American League—Cobb of Detroit (.390), to Detroit (A. L.).

Canadian — Schaefer of Guelph (.398), to Guelph (C. L.).

Eastern Association—Kauff, Hartford (.345), to Indianapolis (A. A.).

Empire State—Chancey, Americus (.383), to New Haven (E. A.).

Illinois-Missouri — Moore, Lincoln (.440), to Lincoln (I.-M. L.).

International—Simmons, Rochester (.339), to Rochester (I. L.).

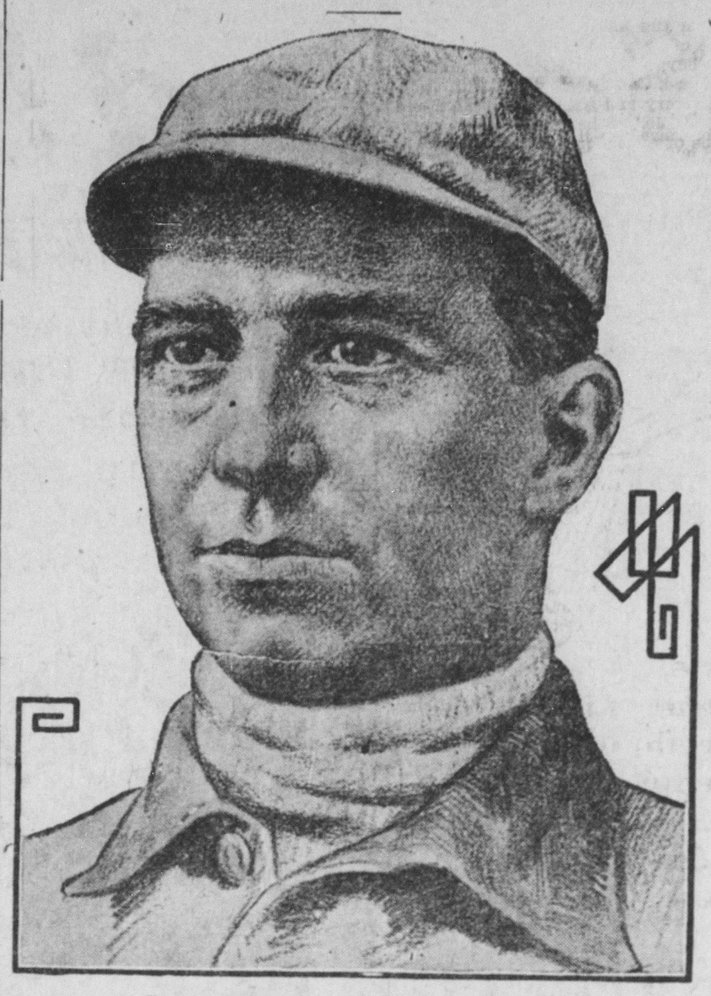
GIVING "OLD POP TIME" A MERRY TUSSLE



Tommy Leach, Captain of the Chicago Cubs.

(By FRANK G. MENKE.)

Old Pop Time is a mighty formidable foe, but records show that many athletes, in many different divisions, have given him some long and fierce tussles before the referee finally counted them out, while others, after nearly a score of years in active service, are still waging a merry little battle against their unbeatable enemy.

There is no division in athletics that uses up a man's vitality so much, none that makes a young man age so fast, none that is so strenuous as pugilism. It calls for everything there is in a man every moment he is in a battle, and practically every battle robs him of a little more of his natural strength, and leaves him just a little easier for Pop Time to conquer.

Yet, here is Bob Fitzsimmons, now nearing his fifty-second milestone, back in the ring again, and showing much of the speed and the ability that made a champion. Bob began fighting in 1891, yet a few nights back, just about 23 years after his first entry in the ring, he swapped punches with a youthful and husky "white hope" and gave that "white hope" a very impressive beating.

Then there's Jim Corbett, another ex-champion, who defied Old Pop Time for 17 years, and quit the fighting game, not so much because Pop forced him out of it, as to avail himself of an opportunity to go on the "stoige."

Kid McCoy, who began fighting soon after the fall of the Roman empire, and who recessed in his efforts a few years back, is in Paris now attempting a "come-back" despite the fact that loving friends are trying to lure him into the Old Men's home.

Some months before going to that gay European city, McCoy coaxed three alleged fighters into the ring in the United States, and, according to reports, disposed of the trio in a total of eight rounds—allowing one to remain on his pedals three rounds, another four rounds, and sending the third party to the mat in less than two minutes.

Battling Nelson, who began retiring about six years ago, is still walking around with his chin exposed, with a terrible look in his lookers, and vowing that he can wallop the best men in his division, despite the fact that he has been fighting for 14 years.

"Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien is another gent, who, after 15 years of service in the ring, has decided that Old Pop Time hasn't conquered him yet. Just now Jack is back in training, and vows that soon he'll get a match and show the world at large that he's even better than when he was in his prime.

George Dixon and Joe Gans, the wonderful negroes, lasted more than 16 years; George McFadden faded as a ring star only after 15 years of service; Joe Choynski battled unceasingly for 16 years; Harry Forbes lasted 15 years, and Joe Walcott saw 14 years of active service before he really disappeared from the radius of the pugilistic spotlight.

Melvin Shepard, the long distance runner, has been at it almost constantly for nearly 11 years, yet today seems as good as ever. George Bothner, the wrestler, began indulging in the grappling business about 20 years ago, and still grapples with much vigor. William Larned has been playing tennis for 15 years, and even now has but few peers.

Coming to baseball, one finds recorded the wonderful resistance to the attacks by Old Pop Time, that was shown by "Cap" Adrian Anson and "Cy" Young. Anson played major league ball for 22 years, and so did Young—truly remarkable records.

Nap Lajoie of the Naps has been in the big leagues 18 years, and looks good for several more at the very least. Honus Wagner, the great Pirate shortstop, has been at it for 17 years and shows no real signs of "slipping." Jimmy Callahan of the White Sox began his big league career 20 years ago and still plays the game, but he dropped out of big league baseball for a few years, and so can't be counted as a consistent performer in the exclusive circle.

Tommy Leach, recently appointed captain of the Chicago Cubs, when John Evers was deposed as manager, begins his eighteenth season this spring, but Tommy is about through. Willie Keeler lasted 19 years in the big leagues, Hughey Jennings was an active baseball man for 16, Bill Sullivan lasted 17, Harry Davis held out 17, Fred Clarke, manager of the Pirates, has been connected with the game for 20 years, but part of this time he has been bench manager. Johnny Kling, after 17 years, has announced his permanent retirement.

But, after all, Old Pop Time is the champion of champions—the athletes, wonderful as they are, must sooner or later fall before his merciless unceasing attacks.

MORDECAI BROWN A MANAGER

Three-Fingered Artist Gets Peculiar Twist on Ball Not Possessed by Any Other Pitcher.

Mordecai Brown, who did more than his share in helping Frank Chance win pennants when they were both with the Cubs, is now manager of the St. Louis Federal team, and able to pitch about as well as he ever did. He is better known as Miner Brown or Three-Fingered Brown. When he was a young man he worked in a mine and a premature explosion took off one of his fingers, and on his pitching hand at that. With the stump of the missing finger he is able to get a peculiar twist on the ball, and a resultant curve not possessed by any other pitcher in the business. When Brown was let go by the Cub management it was not because he had lost any of his speed or cunning as regards actual pitching, but he had twisted his knee and has had more or less trouble with it ever since. The trouble was remedied a good deal by giving the injured leg much massage treatment and a rest. When Joe Tinker took charge of the Cincinnati Reds he made haste to make overtures to the great pitcher, and that he was not mistaken in signing him up, at a good big salary, is shown by the splendid work of the three-fingered one.

TO SUIT THE SEASON

BREAKFAST A MATTER WORTHY OF CONSIDERATION.

Much Depends on the First Meal of the Day, and in Cold Weather Especially It Is of Supreme Importance.

If breakfast is merely a repast of rolls and coffee, then it is much the same in winter and summer. But if it consists of any other dishes, it should change with the season. The school child's winter breakfast, for instance, should be of a different sort from the breakfast it eats in the summer. If a walk or any other exercise is taken before school begins, the breakfast should be of a rather substantial order. Oatmeal, hominy and rice are good cereals for this breakfast. A baked apple or a raw one or an orange can precede the cereal. Afterward crisp buttered toast and a cup of cocoa, not too rich with cocoa, but made entirely of milk, can be eaten. This breakfast is substantial enough for any child.

For the adult who eats more than rolls and coffee for breakfast, honey or marmalade or jam are often relished instead of fresh fruit for the winter breakfast. One of these sweets, with toast, coffee and a coddled egg, rounds out a satisfactory breakfast.

Butter should be generously indulged in at breakfast time by anyone who is immediately going out into the cold. Bacon, broiled or served with or without eggs, is another good breakfast dish in cold weather. In fact, any digestible fat may be eaten. Bacon served with fish makes an ideal winter breakfast dish.

Fruit Candy.

Fruit candies require no cooking and can be easily and quickly made. It is best to use confectioners' sugar, as this may be more easily molded. The sugar is moistened with various fruit juices to obtain various colors. The sugar should be separated into as many portions as there are colors and moistened with enough of the juice to enable one to mold easily. The mixture should then be formed into little balls and rolled in granulated sugar.

Grape juice makes a delicate lavender-colored candy; orange juice a light yellow; cranberry and currant jellies—more or less diluted—different shades of brown are obtained by mixing cocoa with the sugar before adding moisture. Cream and white of egg make the white candies, and the yolk of egg makes a bright yellow. Any of these flavors may be used as a filling for dates. A layer of chopped nuts and raisins between two layers of candy is good.

Spanish Style Beefsteak.

Butter the bottom of a roasting pan just enough to prevent sticking and lay in it a sirloin steak one and one-half inches thick. Put upon this a half can of tomatoes, rubbing the vegetables through a colander, a green pepper from which the seeds have been removed, chopped fine; a medium sized peeled and minced onion, two tablespoons of butter cut into bits, and salt and pepper to taste. Bake for a half hour in a hot oven, basting frequently. Remove the meat to a hot platter and thicken the gravy left in the pan with browned flour. Pour over the steak just before sending to the table.

Two Hall Conveniences.

A shoe duster and a long handled overshoe remover are things that will add to the comfort of any family if they are hung in a convenient place near the hall entrance, throughout the winter and early spring rains. They can be home-made. The duster may be made from a piece of old blanket or any thick woolen material, cut into a fringe and tacked to an old handle of a feather duster, or just a stick, so that dust may be flicked from the shoes without any stooping.

The overshoe remover may be made by using a stick about a yard long, and the lower end cut into a strong and capable shoe horn. In this form, one can stand upright instead of getting smeared by the dripping mud-caked shoe.

Rice and Tapioca Pudding.

Wash three tablespoonfuls of rice and two of tapioca, add four tablespoons sugar, a little grated nutmeg, a pinch of salt, and a quart of milk. Bake in a slow oven two to three hours, stirring occasionally during the first hour. The combination of rice and tapioca is pleasant.

Apple Pie and Cream.

Slice five or six tart apples into a deep pie plate without any undercrust, add two big tablespoons of sugar, a little cinnamon and bits of butter. Cover it with a rich top crust, brush over with milk and bake until apples are soft. In serving, invert each piece and pile with whipped cream, flavored and sweetened.

Fig Filling.

Chop half a pound of figs or run them through a coarse division of the vegetable chopper. Add three tablespoonfuls of sugar and three tablespoonfuls of boiling water, with a tablespoonful of lemon juice. Cook in a double boiler until thick.

Waffles With Boiled Cider.

Allow twice as much cider as sugar, and let boil until of a sirup consistency.

MAKES AN UNEQUALED CAKE

Recipe Is an Old One, but Years Have Passed Without an Improvement Being Made in It.

A woman who for years has made and sold cakes always uses the same recipe for all kinds of festivities, for wedding cakes, special cakes, holiday cakes, party cakes, and everyday cakes, simply because the cake which she made was so delicious that all the guests wanted one like it, and this desire has been passed on to their children and friends. She keeps many cakes on hand, so that customers may have their cake a day, a week, or a month old, as they like. Each cake weighs about one and one-half pounds, and is labeled with the date of its baking. They are kept in stone jars wrapped in waxed paper. Here is the recipe:

One cupful each of sugar, butter and molasses; one cupful home-made jelly or strawberry preserves; one cupful buttermilk; one-half cupful strong coffee; two eggs; one grated nutmeg, two teaspoonfuls cinnamon, one teaspoonful cloves; two teaspoonfuls saleratus (dissolved in one-half cup boiling water); two pounds raisins; one pound cleaned currants; one pound chopped candied fruit (lemon, orange, citron); six cupfuls flour (measured before sifting).

Mix the fruit thoroughly in the flour. Cream butter and sugar, add the eggs, milk and coffee, then the flour containing the fruit. Beat thoroughly and add the spices.

Turn into well-buttered pans, and bake at least one hour in a slow oven.

The kitchen will take on a new atmosphere of cheer if it is given a blue and white tile pattern paper and blue oilcloth for floor and table.

On the emergency shelf there should be some canned milk with the cans of vegetables and fruit, as there may come a time when oysters will have to be cooked at night or something else cooked for which there is not cream or milk enough.

A woman who likes nice things always makes her own lavender water. She takes a bottle of white vinegar and into it puts a handful of lavender flowers. It is allowed to stand five days in a warm place and when strained is ready for use.

Handkerchiefs or other articles of wear that have ink spots on them may be washed better if the spot is smeared with mutton tallow before sending it to the laundry.

A weak solution of turpentine poured down the water pipes once a week will drive the water bugs away.

Half a lemon dipped in salt is excellent for cleaning copper articles. Oxalic acid, too, is equally successful both for copper and brass.

Curried Meats.

Curried meats and vegetables are delicious. Here is a recipe for a good curry sauce that is not especially difficult to make. It can be served with left-over chicken, cut into little strips, and heated in the curry, then put on a platter with a ring or mold of hot rice. It can be served with left-over mutton or lamb, cut in dice or thin slices. It can be served with several vegetables. To make it, slice a medium-sized onion thin and fry it in two ounces of butter. When it is brown add a dessertspoonful of curry powder. Let it cook a minute or two and then add a cupful of beef gravy. Dish gravy from roast beef or beef steak is the best sort, but if this is not at hand beef stock will do. Add also 12 whole cloves, a clove of garlic, a strip or two of lemon peel, a half teaspoonful of salt, two bay leaves, and a teaspoonful or two of tarragon vinegar. Cook this gently for half an hour and then strain it.

Handy Window Pole.

Take an old broom-handle. Paint it to harmonize with your room and insert at one end a screw-hook. Screw into the upper sash of each window in the room a ring-screw for the hook on the pole and your window pole is ready for immediate use. This will save you from having to run up and down and through the house looking for a window pole, or climbing on chairs to reach the sashes every time you wish to raise or lower a window.

For Your Oilcloth.

A very good and inexpensive polish for oilcloth and linoleum is made by melting bits of candle and adding common turpentine to the grease. Apply the mixture with a soft rag and polish with a clean cloth.

Fruit Salad.

One pineapple, sliced, peeled, chopped; two oranges, peeled and cut up; three bananas sliced, juice of half a lemon, two tablespoonfuls grape juice, 1½ cups sugar. Stir and blend. Prepare 1½ hours before using.

Baked Pork Chops.

Take as many thick slices as are needed for the meal, place in a pan with a little water, lay a thin slice of onion on each, season with salt and pepper and bake till done.

Bags for Vegetables.

Keep several bags made of cheese cloth or mosquito netting so that they will be at hand for holding lettuce, celery or other greens that are to be kept in the refrigerator.

WHAT $10 DID FOR THIS WOMAN

The Price She Paid for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Which Brought Good Health.

Danville, Va.—"I have only spent ten dollars on your medicine and I feel so much better than I did when the doctor was treating me. I don't suffer any bearing down pains at all now and I sleep well. I cannot say enough for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills as they have done so much for me. I am enjoying good health now and owe it all to your remedies. I take pleasure in telling my friends and neighbors about them."—Mrs. MATTIE HALEY, 501 Colquhone Street, Danville, Va.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Peace in That Family.

A little girl being lost, was taken to the police station, where the officers tried to learn her name. At last, after many vain efforts, one of them asked her:

"Tell me, dear, what names does your mother call your father?"

"She doesn't call him any name," the child answered, innocently. "She likes him."

A Clue.

Thornton had been taught never to tell tales, and he intended to live up to his teaching, but sometimes it was hard work.

"Thornton," said his mother one evening, "I left a dish of chocolate peppermints on my table this afternoon and there isn't one there now. Have you and Gerald eaten them?"

"I haven't eaten one,' replied the boy stoutly, "but"—then he remembered he must not be a talebearer. "Well, mother," he continued, "perhaps, if—you'd better just smell Gerald, and I guess then you'll know all about it!"—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

LIFE'S ROAD
Smoothed by Change of Food.

Worry is a big load to carry and an unnecessary one. When accompanied by indigestion it certainly is cause for the blues.

But the whole trouble may be easily thrown off and life's road be made easy and comfortable by proper eating and the cultivation of good cheer. Read what a Troy woman says:

"Two years ago I made the acquaintance of Grape-Nuts and have used the food once a day and sometimes twice, ever since.

"At the time I began to use it life was a burden. I was for years afflicted with bilious sick headache, caused by indigestion, and nothing seemed to relieve me.

"The trouble became so severe I had to leave my work for days at a time.

"My nerves were in such a state I could not sleep and the doctor said I was on the verge of nervous prostration. I saw an adv. concerning Grape-Nuts and bought a package for trial.

"What Grape-Nuts has done for me is certainly marvelous. I can now sleep like a child, am entirely free from the old trouble and have not had a headache in over a year. I feel like a new person. I have recommended it to others. One man I knew ate principally Grape-Nuts while working on the ice all winter, and said he never felt better in his life."

CHEAP FARM HOUSE FOR TENANT OR OWNER

FARM TENANT HOUSE.

The department of agriculture has made public the first of a series of plans for farm houses to be prepared by its specialists with a view to enabling farmers to construct inexpensive and better homes. The basis of the inquiry is the belief that the farm house is the most important building on the farm and money judiciously expended in its planning and construction is well invested. The objects sought in the plans are to provide structures reasonable in cost and of good material, and so arranged as to give the maximum in health, comfort and happiness to the family and added convenience to the housewife in her domestic operations.

The plans made public are for the construction of an inexpensive farm tenant house, although the house as planned contains many valuable suggestions for owners with small families. The provision of proper tenant houses on farms it is believed is of increasing importance to farm management because of the increasing number of rented farms, the growing demand of tenants for modern houses and a better understanding of the influences of the home upon farm labor and field efficiency. The census report of 1910 shows an increase during the previous ten years of more than 324,000 rented farms. Many of the new tenants moved into good houses vacated by the owners, but many others are living in buildings wholly unsuited to their needs. The cost of these houses commonly is inconsistent with the value of the farms, and the lack of improvements in them too often is in striking contrast with the outbuildings, farming machinery and field equipment.

The important principles of planning, applicable to all buildings, which effect saving in construction and in the performance of indoor work have been carefully considered in these plans. Endeavor has been made to provide good lines and pleasing proportions which are essentials to genuine beauty in all structures and are the production of skillful designing rather than of additional material and labor.

Special emphasis has been put upon providing a little home that will be conducive to the health of the family, provide for its social and domestic needs and save unnecessary steps and operations on the part of the housekeeper.

The architects' studies seem to make it clear that many homes in towns as well as in the country could have been greatly improved and at the same time built at less expense if they had been studiously planned to meet the family needs, skillfully designed and carefully constructed.

The Tenant House.

The tenant house, plans of which are shown, is a simple, four-corner structure, without bay windows, gables and dormers, or any projection save the cornice, which overhangs and protects the walls and window openings. The house is planned for the most inexpensive arrangement consistent with the needs and the convenience of a small family. It has but one chimney and but one outside entrance.

The Single Door.

The home has but one entrance, which would be insufficient in a town house, and it may be in this one; but another door can be gotten into the plan only by a sacrifice of wall and floor space, which cannot be spared, or by increasing the size and cost of the house, which in connection with this problem cannot be done. If a door is substituted for one of the three windows in the south end of the living room the best part of the room will be ruined. Moving the entrance door to the south side of the porch would not only restrict the uses of the porch, but necessitate an outside door in the kitchen, which, in turn, would necessitate a corresponding increase in the floor and wall space of the kitchen. If the door that opens from living room to porch were moved farther from the fireplace valuable floor and wall space in both room and porch would be sacrificed.

These little details affect the size of rooms and of the building and, therefore, the cost. They are sometimes, and of necessity, influenced more by economy than by convenience; but by careful study they may often be made consistent with both. It is economical, for instance, to have but one outside entrance to this house. With this entrance nearest the barns and the entrance from the highway and located as it is with the simple and inexpensive pergola and benches, which separate the lawn and the back yard, it should serve every purpose of a front door, and as well, also, a kitchen door. In many ten and twelve room farm houses with three or four outside doors, only one door is much used and that one is either in or near the kitchen.

Notwithstanding the simplicity and the playhouse appearance of the building suggested by the department, it provides more usable space for the daily activities of the family than many larger houses. It is more convenient for a small family, more comfortable, healthful and delightful than many farm houses costing twice as much.

The Kitchen.

Very few residences of any size or cost have a kitchen more pleasantly located, better lighted and ventilated, and more conveniently arranged than this little four-room house. It is brightened by the morning sun, cooled by the southern breezes and shielded from the intense heat of summer afternoons. It commands a view of the garden, the play grounds, the barns, the lawn, the gate and the highway. it opens on to a screened porch which, in summer, is the most livable nook in the house. Much of the kitchen work may be done there away from the fumes and the heat of the stove, which, happily for the other rooms of the house, blow out through the north and east windows.

Location of Stove and Ash Bin.

The stove is well lighted and, with the porch window closed, it is out of the cross-drafts of air. It is within six feet of the most distant fixture in the kitchen and but little farther from the dining table. All stove utensils are within reach and the work table and the fuel in the box beneath it are but two steps away. The ashes drop from the fire box of the stove, through a short pipe, to the ash bin beneath the concrete floor.

The fuel box, supporting the table top, occupies space which might otherwise be wasted. It is filled from the outside of the house and emptied from the inside through a small door over the concrete floor.

A trap or dump, like that in the fireplace, is provided for floor sweepings and possible dust from the door of the coal or wood box. It is in the concrete floor, behind the kitchen door, near the fuel box opening and over the ash bin.

The carrying of fuel and ashes is thus eliminated from the woman's work, provided the man or boy fills the coal or wood box each week, or as may be necessary, and empties the ash bin two or three times a year.

The water problem also has been carefully considered in this little plan. Cistern water may be drawn from the bucket pump on the porch, or if desired, from a pitcher pump at the sink. Hot water is heated and stored in the reservoir of the stove. The sink, with only the drain pipe to be provided, is too inexpensive to omit from any kitchen, and space enough has been saved in this one to more than pay for all such conveniences.

This little kitchen excels many others in not being a thoroughfare to other rooms. The men and boys will wash on the porch, leave their hats and rain coats there, and enter the living room without disturbing the kitchen workers.

The Porch.

The screened porch is as large as the plan will permit, but too small for all the purposes for which it will be in demand. Besides the usual kitchen work, the ironing and perhaps the clothes washing will be done there. The one screen door locks up the house, and butter, meat and milk put on the porch to cool at night will be secure against dogs and cats. The porch will be in demand also as a dining porch, sitting porch, sleeping porch and play room. Its uses and the comfort of the house in winter may still further be increased by putting in porch sash and a solid door.

The Living Room.

The living room is large enough for the longest dining table that harvest days will ever require and, with its two routes to the kitchen, it is unusually convenient for feeding a large number of workmen. With triple windows on the south and two on the north, a screened porch on the east and an alcove bedroom on the west, it is as pleasant a dining and sitting room as a $5,000 house can afford, and, with a glowing fire in the hearth, it may be as comfortable and as cheerful in winter as a steam-heated mansion.

Necessary for Hens.

Green feed for laying hens is a necessity, and hens kept in confinement must have it in some form. The poultryman that has access to a field of alfalfa is in luck.

ECZEMA ON HEAD AND FACE

Reedy, W. Va.—"My baby boy when three weeks old took the eczema on the head and face. It broke out in pimples and first they looked like blisters and a yellow water would run from them. His head was perfectly raw and his hair was all gone. Everybody said he would never have any more hair. As the sores spread his hair came out. The breaking out itched so badly that we had to keep gloves on his hands to keep him from scratching his head and face. It caused disfigurement. He couldn't rest at night it burned and itched so badly.

THE CENTRE REPORTER.

THURSDAY, MARCH 12, 1914.

The County's Debt.

If the reader will glance at the financial statement of Centre county he will see at the close of the statement that the total indebtedness of the county is $38,540 82, which means that during the two years the present board of county commissioners have been in charge of the affairs of the county, the indebtedness has been decreased from $139,505 84 in 1912 to $38,540 82, on January 5, 1914, a reduction of indebtedness amounting to $101,001 02 in the two years.

The increase in millage for which the present board of commissioners is responsible yielded not over $25,000 per year. Deducting this there is yet a balance of $50,000 due on account of the introduction of strict business methods. The finances of the county indicate that if it were possible to call in the court house bonds, the entire indebtedness of the county could be wiped out within two years. But these bonds cannot be paid at present, and this will no doubt lead the county commissioners to again reduce the millage.

RECAPITULATION.

Prior to the regular Grange session held in the Auditorium at State an open session was held which was largely attended and proved to be one of the greatest interest to those gathered there.

Superintendents' Terms Expire.

Under the new school code superintendents of county schools will be elected this year for a term of four years. The triennial convention of school directors becomes a thing of the past.

The directors will convene in the county seats of the several counties, on the first Tuesday of May, 1914, and the county superintendent will be elected to serve from the first Monday of June 1914, until the first Monday of May, 1918 Thereafter the school directors' convention in all counties will be held on the second Tuesday of April, 1918, and on the same day of every 4th year and by a majority vote of those present a person duly qualified will be elected as superintendent of schools.

HUNTINGDON DRY, COURT RULING.

Applications for Licenses Refused; Liquor Men May Appeal.

President Judge Joseph M. Woods and Associates W. B. McCarthy and E. M. Beers refused applications of the five retailers and two wholesalers to sell liquor in Huntingdon county, their decisions being unanimous. No opinion was filed with the decision.

Accordingly Huntingdon, April 1, will join the dry counties of Pennsylvania, as the decree is regarded as a final triumph for the temperance organizations. The bitter campaign had its inception shortly after the church fire of March 17, 1910, when four drunken minors applied the torch starting flames which caused a property loss of $135,000 Since then temperance factions have been untiring in their efforts to make Huntingdon a dry county.

Frederick L. Orlady, counsel for the liquor applicants, will take appeal to the superior court in an effort to have the local court decision reversed. If the reversal is not secured, hotel proprietors say they will close their hostelries.
